

BLUES SEARCH OUT THAT POTENTIAL

YET to concede a goal after six Isthmian League outings, Wycombe Wanderers take a 100 per cent record to Walthamstow Avenue tomorrow (3 p.m.). But they are still searching uncertainly for their best potential form.

Walton and Hersham, co-leaders on 12 points from six games, are involved in Cup competition. So Wanderers can open a clear gap at the top of the table.

Avenue lost 3-0 at Hendon on Tuesday night. But other results so far suggest they should extend Wanderers. The Blues will need to improve on recent performances to ensure a better result than the 1-1 draw achieved from a hard, clogging affair last term.

Rock-hard ground conditions continue to make ball control difficult and are affecting Wanderers' play.

Derek Gamblin's comeback off the casualty list helped instil extra direction and purpose from the back at Kingstonian. But somehow, for all their keenness, things aren't going the Blues' way either in midfield or attack — as three narrow 1-0 wins in a row testify.

They will be aiming to further Tuesday's slight, but noticeable step up.

The club reported no new injury troubles after the Kingstonian game. Only Ian Rundle remains casualty listed, and a verdict was hoped for later this week on X-rays taken of his back injury.
